his hands and wrists. Dr. E. J. Brophy was called and dressed the burns. It will be a day or two before the seriousness of the child's condition can be determined. The little girl was

ARAD ROBINSON, LURA ABEL ROBINSON, Who Have 170 Living Descendants

ROBINSON FAMILY REUNION

Annual Gathering at the Old Homestead Brings 90 of the Lineage Together—Officers Remain the Same—Record of the Marriages and Births in the Year—Historical Sketch.

The descendants of Arad Robinson held their 30th annual reunion at the Robinson homestead on Prospect Hill, Franklin, Thursday. The homestead is owned by Deacon Lavinus A. Robinson, and is occupied by Deacon and Mrs. Robinson, and their eldest son, Clifford, and his family.

Mountain View, as the old homestead is now called, is located on the southern slope of Prospect Hill. The view from the homestead is one of rare beauty. Looking to the east, with Ayres' mountain on the right and
hill can be seen in the distance. Nestled down in the valley about three miles away can be seen Pantpaug creek, where several generations of Robinsons have been laid to rest.

170 Members Now in Family.

The family now number 170 members and nearly 90 were present. The gathering began early in the morning, arriving by train, trolley, team, auto and by foot. A noticeable fact in connection with the family is that with a few exceptions, it is possible for all to make this reunion in one day.
At noon a sumptuous dinner was served on the lawn in front of the homestead. The large family was seated at two long tables over which was stretched a large awning or tent covering. Prayer was offered by Deacon Robinson. Full justice was done the appearing spread after which a business meeting was held.

Among those present, coming from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. Lau-vius A. Hyde, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd R. Robinson and Mrs. Robert O. Mitchell of Brattleboro, Vt.; Mr. and Mrs. Manning of New Britain; George E. Manning, historian; Mrs. Lucy Manning.

Readings were given by Mrs. W. E.
Manning, Mrs. George S. Ladd, Mrs.
Myron Manning, William Manning, Mrs. Remond Ladd, and others.
Remarks were made by Deacon Robinson.
In the afternoon many of the younger members of the family gathered which joins the Robinson farm on the east.

Deacon Robinson was born October 6, 1834 and has always lived at the homestead. On June 5, 1874, 40 years ago, he married Andella Brown, Huntington, and four children were born to them, two now living, Clifford H. and Lloyd R.

Marriages and Births.

Since the last reunion a year ago, there have been two marriages. Mary Eber Manning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred N. Manning, to Prescott Chamberlain, both of South Windham.
On April 16, 1914, Lloyd R. Robinson, son of Deacon Robinson, was married to Julia E. Milke of Brattleboro, Vt.
Lloyd Robinson is the youngest of the grandchildren of Arad Robinson.

There have been five births: A son, Lawrence, to Prescott and Mary (Manning) Chamberlain; a son, Norman Caleb, to Ernest Kibbe and Dora (Arnold) Kibbe; a son, Edgar, to Reuben Taylor and Maud (Arnold) Manning; a son, Leroy Dimock, to Leroy Edg-ard and Cora Dimock; Tucker, a son, to Edgar and Sarah (Palmer) Stacy.

There have been no deaths during the year.

Arad Robinson, the seventh in line from Rev. John Robinson, was born in Benning, Robins, a New York town, on January 30, 1797. He was 8 years of age when his father died. He was educated in the common schools of his town. After a district schooling he learned the trade of blacksmith with his father, Peter Robinson.

Soon after his marriage to Lura Abel, in 1820, he rented a farm and blacksmith shop in the west part of the town, and he was a dealer in he purchased the farm now owned and occupied by his son, Deacon Lavinus A.
Robinson, then owned by Deacon Corwin. Here he resided and conducted the blacksmith shop until his death, September 15, 1874.

Old Shop Still Standing.

The old shop is still standing, and is in daily use as a carriage house.
Many implements fashioned nearly 100 years ago are to be found about the farm buildings. Deacon Robinson has added materially to the farm and made many improvements. His son, Clifford, conducts the farm.

Eight children were born to Arad and Lura Robinson. Lura Abel (Hyde), Rosamond Miranda (Gager), Nancy Jane (Hyde), Mary Taylor (Manning), J. Allen Bidwell (Hyde), George Williams (Manning), Lavinus Arad Robinson and Nelson Dexter Robinson. Of their children, only the three now living, Lura (Robinson) Manning and Lavinus Arad Robinson, both being present at the reunion Thursday.

The family's history is most interesting and like many of the old New England families, dates back to the landing of the Mayflower. The family's genealogy is nearly complete back to Rev. John Robinson, who, after a life time of labor and hardship, watched the departure of the Mayflower from Delftshaven, August 1, 1620 for the New World. It was the realization of his life's dreams, but he never was permitted to come to America. He only the strongest members of his church leaving him to set out on a new enterprise filled with peril, the chief motives of this expedition being religious liberties and the missionary purpose. The savages of America offered a fresh field for the

DISMISSED CLAIM

IN FILLIGER CASE.

Commissioner Finds Widow Not Entitled to Compensation—Because of Misconduct of Deceased.

In the claim of Mrs. Charles Filliger of Occum, against the workmen's compensation act, Dr. J. J. Donohue, commissioner for the second district, has decided in dismissing the claim after a hearing held before him on June 23, 1914.

Commissioner Donohue gives his findings as follows:

Mrs. Charles Filligier was not a dependent according to the meaning of dependence as stated in Section 10 of Part B of the Workmen's Compensation act, which gives this definition:
"A person totally dependent upon a deceased employee." A wife upon a husband with whom she lives at the time of the injury or from whom she received support regularly."

There was no evidence introduced to show that Mrs. Filligier had received support regularly from her husband, or that she lived with him at the time of his injury. In fact, the contrary was admitted.

It is further found from the facts that Charles Filligier was guilty of wilful misconduct by the use of intoxicating liquors while in the course of his employment. The evidence shows the ultimate outcome has proven that the misconduct was serious from the fact that Mrs. Filligier was not a dependent upon her husband.

It is further found that the certificate of the medical examiner states that Filligier met his death while he was on the job at the time he was when he fell from the seat, plunged forward on the ground, striking on his head, and probably causing his death.

According to Section 1 of Part B of the Workmen's Compensation act, "no compensation shall be paid when the injuries shall have been caused by the willful and serious misconduct of the injured employee or his intoxication," and therefore, the claim is disallowed.

Mr. Filligier's death, it was found, was the result of his own fault. He was driving a team loaded with lumber.
He left a widow and a number of children. His wife, Mrs. Filligier, was born in 1876 and entered college in 1915.
He married Elizabeth White, daughter of Bishop White of the Church of England, and three sons and three daughters were born to them. He died in Leyden, Holland in 1915.

Isaac Robinson, his second son, was born in 1810 and came to New England in 1831, stopping first with the Pilgrims at Plymouth colony.

John Robinson a Separatist.

John Robinson was a separatist, and became a minister while still a young man. He did not favor the ideas of the Church of England, but wanted more "religious liberties." After suffering much persecution, he with William Bradford and William Brewster, other Puritans of the strictest kind, separated from the Church of England. Soon after 1614 they moved to Leyden, Holland, and the majority of their followers, where Robinson spent the remainder of his life as pastor of St. Peter's church, also known as the "Pilgrim church."

Bradford was one of the younger members of the Pilgrim church and was stretched a large awning or tent covering. He did not assume his position of prominence until after the emigration to America. He later became governor of Plymouth. He was a printer by trade. Brewster was the first Puritan pastor in America.

The Congregationalists indeed can be proud to claim as the founders of their polity in its modern form, Robert, Brewster and Bradford, all of Scrooby, England, that later, from the rectory at Epworth in the same district, went forth William Wesley, and Charles Wesley, the mobile leaders of the Methodist movement.

Virtual Founder of Congregationalism.

The strength of John Robinson's personality is best appreciated by considering the impression which he made upon his followers. To be a leader and moulder of strong men requires a strong man. William Bradford and William Brewster were strong men.
They set their mark deeply upon the subsequent history of the Pilgrims.
The master of the ideal, the moulding force, upon Bradford and Brewster, and the present master of the Pilgrims, the pastor of the Pilgrim church, was John Robinson, the virtual founder of Congregationalism.

BOY SCOUT NOTES.

Picture Show Cleaned Out Treasury—Efforts Now to Restore Finances—Walking Record.

Results from The Making of a Scout motion picture held recently under the auspices of Troop No. 3, Boy Scouts of America, were everything but a financial success. Owing to an unavoidable combination of circumstances the attendance was very small.
Not only did the boys not have their after cleaning out the treasury they still find themselves in debt. The picture was immensely popular, and everyone and did the boys nearly as much good as a year's service.

Troop Leader Ferguson, Assistant Troop Leader Cook and Treasurer Tyler Rogers are planning a cake and ice cream sale, which they will manage themselves with the other boys and without active help from the scoutmaster.
Patrol Leader Cook and Assistant Patrol Leader Tyler Rogers returned on Sunday in fine condition after their trip to Hartford, where they averaged 3 1/2 miles per hour and hold the Scout walking record of Eastern Connecticut and probably of the entire state. Much information that they gained will be of great service to their troop.

Scouts Ferguson and Cook are planning to set up a wireless station at the Y. M. C. camp at Osewatchesville, while the scoutmaster of Troop No. 3 will have charge of scouting instruction at the same camp.

thrice past master, from which he recently retired at a banquet in observance of St. John's day by Kimberly Lodge, No. 10, of Providence.

Accepted Scottish Rite, at the Masonic temple here this week. William Wells, the present master of the lodge, devoted the evening to the presentation of the jewel. Those who spoke were Arthur H. Brewer, thirty-third degree; J. Allen Bidwell, thirty-third degree; ding over the consistory.

Will Claim Horse Thief Reward.

Conductor Charles Tubbs of the East Lyme trolley line made the arrest last Wednesday afternoon of George Williams, who was complained against for stealing a horse, wagon and load of ice from a New London New York Wednesday morning. Williams had sold the ice along the road. He was captured in Waterford. In the police court at New London Thursday morning Williams pleaded guilty to stealing a horse owned by Harvey Belger and was bound over to the superior court.
He went to jail in default of $500 bond.

TREE CUTTING CASE

IN COMMON PLEAS

Ledyard Suit Tried Before Judge Burnham of Hartford.

Court of common pleas came in at New London today to try the case of Sarah A. Spicer against Urban C.
Whitford, involving the unlawful cutting of trees. The case was heard by Judge Burnham of Hartford, as Judge Waller was disqualified because his firm represents the plaintiff.

The suit originated over the cutting of trees on land in Ledyard by the defendant who claimed having made a contract to cut trees. When the defendant had cut five trees an injunction was secured restraining him from further action of that sort.

All the evidence was finished in the morning and in the afternoon arguments were made by Attorneys Gallup and Avery for the plaintiffs and Attorneys Tanner and Belcher for the defendant.
